This book, Air War on the Eastern Front: A Casemate Illustrated History, provides a comprehensive overview of the air war on the Eastern Front. The book is lavishly illustrated with hundreds of rare and unpublished photographs, many of which have never before been seen by the public.

The book tells the story of the air war on the Eastern Front from the German invasion of the Soviet Union in June 1941 to the surrender of Germany in May 1945. The book covers all aspects of the air war, from the development and deployment of new aircraft to the tactics and strategies used by both sides.

The book also tells the personal stories of the men and women who fought in the air war on the Eastern Front. These stories provide a fascinating glimpse into the lives of these brave individuals and the challenges they faced.

Chapter 1: The Invasion of the Soviet Union

The German invasion of the Soviet Union on June 22, 1941, was the largest military operation in history. The Luftwaffe, the German air force, played a major role in the invasion, providing close air support to the advancing German armies.

The Soviet Air Force was caught off guard by the German invasion. The Soviets had a large number of aircraft, but many of them were obsolete and poorly trained. The Luftwaffe quickly gained air superiority over the Eastern Front and used its air power to support the German advance.

Chapter 2: The Battle of Moscow

The Battle of Moscow was one of the most important battles of World War II. The Germans launched a major offensive on Moscow in the fall of 1941, and the Soviets were forced to retreat. The Luftwaffe played a major role in the German offensive, providing close air support to the advancing German armies.

The Soviets eventually halted the German advance and launched a counteroffensive in the winter of 1941-42. The Luftwaffe was unable to provide adequate air support to the German armies in the winter, and the Soviets were able to drive the Germans back from Moscow.

Chapter 3: The Battle of Stalingrad

The Battle of Stalingrad was another one of the most important battles of World War II. The Germans launched a major offensive on Stalingrad in the summer of 1942, and the Soviets were forced to retreat into the city. The Luftwaffe played a major role in the German offensive, providing close air support to the advancing German armies.

The Soviets eventually halted the German advance and launched a counteroffensive in the winter of 1942-43. The Luftwaffe was unable to provide adequate air support to the German armies in the winter, and the Soviets were able to surround and destroy the German Sixth Army.

Chapter 4: The Battle of Kursk

The Battle of Kursk was the largest tank battle in history. The Germans launched a major offensive on Kursk in the summer of 1943, and the Soviets were forced to retreat. The Luftwaffe played a major role in the German offensive, providing close air support to the advancing German armies.

The Soviets eventually halted the German advance and launched a counteroffensive in the summer of 1943. The Luftwaffe was unable to provide adequate air support to the German armies, and the Soviets were able to drive the Germans back from Kursk.

Chapter 5: The Liberation of Eastern Europe

In the summer of 1944, the Soviets launched a major offensive on the Eastern Front. The Luftwaffe was unable to provide adequate air support to the German armies, and the Soviets were able to liberate Eastern Europe from German occupation.

The Soviets eventually reached Berlin in the spring of 1945, and the Germans surrendered on May 8, 1945. The air war on the Eastern Front was finally over.

The air war on the Eastern Front was one of the most intense and brutal air campaigns in history. Both sides fielded large numbers of aircraft and engaged in fierce aerial battles.
