The book is divided into four parts:

1. Part I: Foundations of Behavioral Intervention

2. Part II: Behavioral Interventions for Specific Problems
3. Part III: Special Populations
4. Part IV: Advanced Topics in Behavioral Intervention

Part I provides an overview of the principles of behavioral intervention, including the role of reinforcement, punishment, and extinction. It also discusses the ethical and legal considerations involved in behavioral intervention.

Part II covers a range of behavioral interventions for specific problems, such as aggression, anxiety, autism spectrum disorder, and obsessive-compulsive disorder. Each chapter provides a detailed description of the intervention, including its goals, procedures, and evidence base.

Part III addresses the unique challenges of providing behavioral intervention to special populations, such as children with developmental disabilities and adults with chronic mental illness. It also discusses the role of family and school in supporting behavioral intervention.

Part IV covers advanced topics in behavioral intervention, such as functional analysis, reinforcement schedules, and data collection. It also provides guidance on how to adapt behavioral interventions to meet the needs of individual clients.
