The Marx Through Lacan Vocabulary

The Marx Through Lacan Vocabulary is a collection of essays that explore the relationship between Marx and Lacan. Horvat uses Lacan's theory of the unconscious to provide new interpretations of Marx's work on capitalism, communism, and revolution.

In one essay, Horvat argues that Marx's concept of the commodity fetishism can be understood as a form of unconscious desire. The commodity fetishism is the process by which we come to believe that the value of a commodity is inherent to the commodity itself, rather than being a product of human labor. Horvat argues that this process is driven by our unconscious desire to possess objects that we believe will make us happy.

In another essay, Horvat argues that Marx's concept of communism can be understood as a form of radical democracy. Communism is a society in which the means of production are owned in common and in which there is no private property. Horvat argues that this type of society would allow for the free expression of our desires and fantasies, and would create a more just and equitable world.
